
30-Min Presentation Call Guide

How to deliver the Roadmap and close with a testimonial

This is the session you booked at the end of the audit call. The goal is to move quickly, demonstrate massive ROI, and capture the social proof you need to grow your consulting business.

1. The Recap (Slides 1–2)

Start by grounding them in the cost of their problem. Grounding the conversation in their own numbers makes the solution landing much harder.

"As we discussed, I took a look at your workflows. Based on the audit, you're currently burning about X hours a week on manual tasks. That's roughly $X,000 a year in lost time."

2. The Solution (Slides 3–8)

Walk them through each recommendation at a high level. Name the problem and the tool. Do not perform a technical demo; focus on the outcome.

"I've identified 3 specific opportunities where we can fix this immediately. First, for [Problem A], I recommend [Tool A]. It automates the entire process. Second..."

3. The ROI (Slide 9)

This is where the math does the work. Let the slide sit for a beat. Don't rush past the numbers.

"If you implement these three tools, the math is pretty clear. You're looking at saving roughly X hours a month. That's a 10x return on the software cost."

4. The Handover (Slide 10)

Close with immediate action. You are handing over a ready-to-act document.

"I've put all the direct links in the PDF here. You can literally click them and set this up this afternoon."

The Testimonial Request

You have just given your client thousands of dollars in value for free. Now it's time to ask for a testimonial. Note: You must get this on the call. If you wait, the enthusiasm fades and life gets in the way.

THE TESTIMONIAL SCRIPT

"So, that's the Roadmap. I'm going to send these slides over to you right now. Was this helpful?"

(Wait for the "Yes")

"Awesome. Look, as I mentioned, I'm doing these for free right now to build my portfolio. The only thing I ask in return is a quick 30-second video testimonial. Just you saying who you are, that we did this audit, and that it was valuable. Would you be open to recording that right now while we're on the call? It saves us the email tag."
